ANDERSON GAVE "HENRY MANN" SMALL FORTUNE

$25,000 Given Anderson by 'John T. King' Handed Over to Another Comparative Stranger for Publicity

GETS NO RECEIPTS

"Mann" Never Accounted for Sum to Superintendent, Latter Testifies—Pecora Continues "King" Story

New York, Jan. 25. — William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, today continued narration of the $25,000 he obtained from a comparative stranger in 1918 and 1919, added to his recital the name of another comparative stranger, to whom he entrusted the expenditure of the gift.

Every ramification of the remarkable story was given in detail by Anderson, who was on the witness stand for the second day in defense of the forgery charge being heard against him in supreme court. Most of the story was drawn by the cross examination of Assistant District Attorney Pecora, the prosecutor, who talked himself into hoarseness and fatigue in his three and a half hour arraignment of the witness.

A person named by Anderson as "Henry Mann," as mysterious as the strange "John T. King," who according to the league head's testimony yesterday made him the $25,000 gift, was the added member of the story's cast. It was he, Anderson testified, who spent the $24,709 the league head said he advanced to the league in 1913 and 1914 for "publicity purposes." And he spent it, the witness declared, without giving in return a receipt or a voucher and without making an accounting of any kind to the league superintendent.

Renews Questions About "King."

The day opened with Anderson on the stand and Pecora, thumbs in waistcoat, shoulder squared, standing before him with a list of questions ready. Pecora, apparently dissatisfied with the witnesses' statements of yesterday, spent his knowledge of the transactions anew, continued on the subject for the first half hour.

Anderson declared the last time he had seen King was in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel shortly after he assumed the office of league superintendent. They had dinner together, he said, and King passed over an envelope which Anderson later found to contain $2,000 in currency.

"Did he say what the money was for?" Pecora asked.

"He didn't have to—that was understood," was the reply.

They were alone, he testified, in the morning. In the afternoon, still under cross examination, he told Pecora he believed he had been introduced to Mrs. King—"I think, I am not sure, that she was present at the dinner."

Knows Man's Name Only.

The name "Mann" was brought into the record under conditions similar to those under which that of King was made public. Pecora asked Anderson the name of the publicity man King had introduced to him.

"I protest that to name him would be a violation of confidence," Anderson said, turning to Justice Tompkins.

"You must answer," the court directed.

"He said his name was Mann, Henry Mann."

He did not know his residence or office address, he explained, nor had he ever seen Mann except in the league offices or by appointment at the Pennsylvania terminal. On all these occasions, he said, he gave Mann money. Mann, he added, was employed in the "publicity work" of the league for 22 months, doing his last work in 1915, when he received the [illegible] payment of $24,709. In all he declared, he had met Mann 20 to 25 times. He had met him but once, a casual street meeting, since the work had been completed, he said, although he had sought him since the district attorney began the investigations which culminated in his indictment.

Afraid to Tell Directors.

Asked why he had not told the league's directors at the time he put in a claim for reimbursement of the $24,709 in 1918, of Mann's connection with the publicity, he replied that he did not dare because if the identity of the publicity man became known his life would be in danger.

"Anything might have happened to him," he explained.

He had given a detailed list of the expenditures of Mann to the directors, he added. The loose sheets of paper on which he had noted these payments from time to time, he explained, he had destroyed.

Pecora, producing a letter from Anderson to the directors in which he declared the money he had advanced the league had been raised by him through a mortgage of his home and the hypothecation of three life insurance policies, asked the witness why he had not told the true source of the money and Anderson replied that he had "been misled in his duress." He declared that as a result of his loans to the league he had had to obtain the mortgage for his personal signature, and that the proceedure had caused confusion in his mind.

Didn't Press Claim for $89,709.

"What amount did you first ask the board in reimbursement when you first told the directors that you had spent this money in the league's interests?" Pecora asked.

"I asked $89,709. That included compensation."

"Compensation to whom?"

"To me, for my work in connection with the publicity work. I did not press the claim, however, and it was not paid."

He added that the league since 1918 had repaid him more than $10,000 on his claim, in addition to the $4,000 he had taken from the commission of O. Bertrand Phillips, league fund secretor, who charged that Anderson compelled him to "split" collection commissions. Part of this sum, he added, represented six per cent interest he charged the league.

PRAIRIE WAGON TO CARRY BIG MESSAGE

Movement Advocates Simpler Government and Less Taxes in State

Buffalo, Jan. 25. — Carrying a message of the farmers' struggles for lower taxes and less legislation, an old fashioned prairie schooner will come out of the west into New York state next Monday to begin at Fredonia, birthplace of the Grange movement, a campaign tour through western New York state cities that will wind up its first lap in Buffalo when the New York State grange meets here for its annual convention in the week of February 4. The campaign is under the joint auspices of the State Farm Bureau and the State grange.

The wagon itself is a relic of pioneer days. The idea it seeks to convey is printed in big letters on the canvas top—"Let's get back to the way of our fathers—simplicity, honesty, economy in government." Ohio grangers will deliver the wagon to farmers of this state. At Fredonia it will be taken in charge by Enos Lee of Yorktown Heights, president of the New York State Farm Bureau. In its itinerary through New York he and other men prominent in agricultural organizations will drive it, speaking in cities and towns visited on the needs of retrenchment in money spending and law making. Other drivers and speakers will be C. L. Strivings, overseer of the New York State grange; S. J. Lowell, Fredonia, former master of the National grange; Charles S. Aldrich, Fredonia, president of the Chautauqua Farm Bureau; Frank J. Riley of Sennett, secretary of the New York State grange, and C. A. Dyer of Columbus, O., chairman of the Lower Tax and Less Law league.

NEW PREMIER WILL KEEP NO SECRETS

Will Give Newspapers of England Information as to What Is Going On

(By the Associated Press)

London, Jan. 25. — Secret diplomacy will have no place in the dealings of Great Britain's premier, Ramsay Macdonald, with foreign countries.

Mr. MacDonald intends that the public shall be informed of foreign negotiations whenever the circumstances warrant. He also has decided that the discussions within the cabinet shall not be kept "drum tight," as it is claimed in some quarters was the case in the Baldwin-Curzon administration, but that the newspapers shall be given a communique after each session, summarizing the subjects discussed or decisions taken.

In conversation with the newspaper-men today, Mr. MacDonald said he always would be glad to receive them when public interests demanded or time permitted. The premier's policy of acquainting the public with what the government was doing was apparent today at the press bureau of the foreign office, where it was indicated that Mr. MacDonald might arrange to receive the newspaper men periodically, the same as is done by President of the United States. In this respect, Mr. MacDonald would revive the war time practice of David Lloyd George.

LEAPED TO DEATH WITHIN FIVE FEET OF FIRE ESCAPE

Syracuse, Jan. 25. — Reports tonight to city officials, after a search of the Manhattan hotel building, which was swept by fire early today with the loss of one life and $100,000 property damage, fails to indicate the cause of the blaze.

Lewis A. Chatterton, 57, of Auburn, who leaped to death from the burning hotel, apparently did not notice a fire escape within five feet of the window from which he leaped. Chatterton for many years was active in the police of Auburn and for two terms was alderman for the sixth ward. At one time he was foreman of the electrical plant at Auburn prison.

SHAKE UP NEW YORK POLICE.

New York, Jan. 25. — A sensational police shake-up, in which one inspector, three deputy inspectors, 11 captains, 17 lieutenants, 25 sergeants and 320 patrolmen were transferred to other posts was ordered tonight by Police Commissioner Enright. The order also relieved inspectors of responsibility for enforcement of prohibition, that duty being given to a special service division.

F. P. GUTELIUS RECOVERING

Albany, Jan. 25. — F. P. Gutelius, resident vice president of the D. & H., at Montreal, is recovering from a severe heart attack at his home, 241 Kensington avenue, in that city. He as reported much improved today, but it is expected that it will be several days before he can resume his duties.

LEGISLATURE FROWNS UPON MORE PROBES

Attention Needed to Put Through Necessary Compromise Bills While Parties Seem Quite Agreeable

GOVERNOR BUSY

Has No Time to Personally Conduct More Inquiries—Resolution Calls for Dry League Investigation

Albany, Jan. 25. — There seems to be no great desire on the part of legislative leaders to throw the legislature into a turmoil, at the present moment, anyway, by starting an investigation of any sort, it was indicated at the capitol today.

A mass of legislation is pending, some of it involving administration policies which are certain to become controversial. With the compromise steps which have already been taken, party chieftians are said to feel that it would be unwise to divert too much attention from harmony measures which are being urged and which are by no means being frowned upon by both parties.

For several days conversation about the capitol has turned to the possibility of Senator Nathan Straus, Jr., Democrat, New York, reviving a resolution which would seek an investigation of Associated Industries of New York State, Inc., the organization which recently preferred charges against the state labor department. The resolution was withheld by Senator Straus early last week, when Governor Smith announced that he personally would conduct the inquiry into the labor department.

Would Probe Dry League.

The question has arisen as to how Senator Straus will dispose of the resolution. Friends of Governor Smith have made it known that the governor is inclined to let the legislators go ahead with an investigation if they wish, but that he personally is busy enough with other matters to consider the labor department inquiry as the last one he is likely to this season.

Now there has reached the legislature a request for another inquiry into the activities of the Anti-Saloon League of New York state and of its superintendent, William H. Anderson, who is on trial in New York after having been indicted on a charge of forgery in the third degree. The request came from Arthur P. Williams, foreman of the additional grand jury of New York county, which indicted Anderson last July. No action was taken on it today, however.

WOULD AID NATIONAL GUARD.

Albany, Jan. 25. — An appropriation of $200,000 for the improvement of the state National Guard camp at Peekskill was recommended by Governor Smith in an address at the annual National Guard dinner here tonight. Endorsing the National Guard and its organization, the governor said he would support and aid it in every way, except to "ride a horse." Referring in the course of his address to the activities of women who seek equal civic responsibility with men, the governor said he felt that they should be glad to escape jury duty, since they, like the National Guard, serve their state and country in a greater measure.

Schenectady, Jan. 25. — Raymond Potter, 2, [illegible] to lockjaw in the hospital here today, ten days ago the boy fell, his head striking a wood chip frozen in the ice. A scalp abrasion was the only apparent injury, but lockjaw set in within a short time.

37 DEAD, SIX SERIOUSLY HURT IN MINE DISASTER; CAUSE REMAINS UNKNOWN

Johnson City, Jan. 25. — Thirty seven men are dead, six seriously injured and badly burned while eight others suffered burns about the head and body in a mine disaster which occurred here this afternoon.

After hours of faithful work on the part of volunteer rescue teams to aid the organized teams of Williamson county, the last of the injured in the explosion at the East side mine of the Crerar Coal company mine here this afternoon had been brought to the surface and are being given medical aid in hospitals here and in Herrin.

One man was brought to the surface by the miner's rescue teams, his face and head so badly burned it was impossible to identify him. Throngs of frenzied men, women and children are gathered about the entrance to the mine.

Although no positive statement can be advanced as to the cause of the explosion, officials state that a strict investigation will be conducted tomorrow. A similar explosion occurred in this mine four years ago in which one man was killed and several injured.

ALBANY SUPREME COURT SETS MARK

Third Judicial District Ranks First in Country of Dry Law Violation Fines

Albany, Jan. 25. — The third judicial district, of which Albany is the seat, ranks first in the country in the number of prohibition violation cases tried, it was said here today. In 1923 a total of 595 defendants were arraigned, 155 indictments were pending January 1, and there are now 300 cases awaiting trial. The district is said to rank second in the amount of fines collected during 1923, the total being $332,875.

The district includes Albany, Schoharie, Rensselaer, Greene, Sullivan, Ulster, and Columbia counties. Convictions have filled the jails of Albany and Schenectady. It was indicated today when deputy marshals reported they were unable to lodge a prisoner in the Albany institution and asked to recommit the man to the Rensselaer county jail at Troy.

Judge Frank Cooper levied approximately $2,500 in fines for dry law violations and illegal entry into the country today.

SALVINSKI PLEADS GUILTY

Ballston Spa., Jan. 25. — Matthew L. Salvinski of Albany today pleaded guilty to a charge of first degree manslaughter in connection with the shooting of State Trooper Roy A. Donivan of Troop G on the "Bootleg Trail" near Glens Falls on October 8, 1923. He will be sentenced Monday to a term of between 10 and 20 years.

The Day in Washington

The White House announced that President Coolidge regarded the Teapot Dome evidence as pointing toward criminal action.

Albert B. Fall remained in seclusion awaiting his turn on the witness stand Monday before the Teapot Dome committee.

J. W. Zevely, attorney for Harry F. Sinclair, testified before the Teapot Dome committee that Sinclair loaned Albert B. Fall $25,000 in Liberty bonds after Fall had left the cabinet.

The house ways and means committee agreed upon reductions in several miscellaneous taxes.

Secretary Weeks received the latest Muscle Shoals offer of southern power interests while the house military committee was holding hearings on the question.

The Lehigh Valley railroad company, before the mixed claims commission asserted it had obtained evidence that the "Black Tom" explosion was brought about on orders of the German government.

Arrangements were completed for the immediate calling in Washington by the President of a conference of representatives of interests affected by the acute economic condition in the northwest to discuss relief action.

AGREE ON SOME POINTS OF TAX REDUCT'N PLAN

Part of Nuisance Taxes to Be Eliminated, According to Compromise Provisions in Committee Bill

THEATRE TAX CUT

Admissions Under 50 Cents Levy-Free—Coolidge Asks Non-Partisian Support of Mellon Measure

Washington, Jan. 25. — Tax reductions amounting to $103,000,000 annually and affecting more than 20 industries were agreed upon today by the house ways and means committee in its first major decision on the revenue rates.

The rate changes, repealing some of the miscellaneous or nuisance taxes instituted during the war, were affected by non-partisan vote in committee and included some suggestions of both the Mellon and Democratic plans.

Taxes on theatre admissions of 50 cents or under and on beverages were repealed and the levies on jewelry and produce exchange sales were cut in half. Previous agreement to repeal the taxes on telegrams, telephone messages, leased wires, and candy were confirmed.

With committee consideration of the income rates thus brought nearer, President Coolidge appealed today for non-partisan support of the Mellon bill. He let it be known that he considered the prospects for a substantial agreement on its provisions as brighter and that he believed credit for the bill, if enacted, should go to whoever votes for it, regardless of political affiliations. The Democrats, however, continued their attitude of indifference to the Republican proposal for a compromise agreement in committee on the income rates, Representative Garner, Texas, ranking Democrat on the ways and means committee, reiterating that his party was united for the Democratic plan.

Longworth Fights for Compromise.

Republican leaders sought today to [illegible] differences within the party on the question whether the majority members should write a separate bill or seek a compromise in committee with the Democrats. The question will be taken up by the steering committee tomorrow.

Representative Longworth, Republican floor leader, held his ground for a compromise agreement today despite the Democratic attitude, declaring the only hopes of obtaining any immediate action on tax legislation on the floor lay in a non-partisan measure worked out in committee.

The tax repeals and reductions today would become effective immediately on enactment of the measures.

Other taxes repealed included those on hunting, bowie and dirk knives, livery and livery boots, hunting garments, yachts and motor boats, carpets and rugs, trunks and valises, purses and pocketbooks, portable lighting fixtures, and fans. Taxes on produce exchange sales and on bowling and billiards was cut in half.

GIRL BANDIT STEALS TRUCK IN BUSY BROOKLYN STREET

New York, Jan. 25. — A girl bandit, whose description tallies in many ways with that of the "flapper" robberies that have worried the police for weeks, accomplished the climax of feminine daring today when she held up a truck driver in Brooklyn's business district and, with the aid of three men accomplices, escaped with the truck and its load of sugar worth $900.

Boarding the truck from an automobile bearing her three companions, the girl forced the driver at the point of a revolver to drive to a lonely section of the city. The driver passed within a few feet of half a dozen traffic policemen during his involuntary drive, but if girl at his side repeatedly cowed him with the sarcastic query: "where do you want your body sent to?"

L. V. SAYS GERMANY ORDERED EXPLOSION

Railroad States It Has Proof 'Black Tom' Blast Was Result of Berlin Instructions

Washington, Jan. 25. — Charges that the "Black Tom" explosion in New Jersey on July 30, 1916, was caused by agents of the German government, acting under express orders from Berlin, were made in a brief filed with the mixed claims commission today by the Lehigh Valley railroad company. The brief said the railroad company had within the last 60 days obtained access to evidence which would support its charges.

The Lehigh Valley had before the commision a claim for damage to some of its barges by a German submarine. It sought in the brief filed today to amend the claim so as to recover approximately $9,000,000 for losses in the "Black Tom" explosion. The company had been compelled to pay several million dollars in claims for damages after that disaster.

Setting forth that around its docks at National Docks, N. J., there was much ammunition destined for the allied governments, the brief asserted that since the blast the Lehigh Valley had endeavored to obtain legal proof that German agents set off the explosion, but had been unsuccessful until within the past two months. It asked the commission for permission to submit affidavits and other evidence to support its charges.

In addition to the monetary damage in the "Black Tom" explosion there was a large loss of life. Insurance companies have paid out many millions of dollars which might become involved in the event the commission acts favorably on the Lehigh Valley complaint. The brief was filed by Lewis A. McGowan, a Washington attorney.

ENGLAND'S RAIL STRIKE CONTINUES UNCHANGED

(By the Associated Press)

London, Jan. 25. — Tonight there was not the slightest sign of any cessation of the strike of the members of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen. J. Bromley, secretary of the associated society, has asserted from the commencement of the strike that it would last a fortnight and at the present moment it looks as though his prediction might be fulfilled.

Although there have been no big returns to work in the ranks of the strikers, the resumption of work by a few of the enginemen has been balanced by fresh walkouts on the part of others, so that while the railway managers gradually are evolving better regulated skeleton train services, they have been unable appreciably to increase traveling and freight facilities.

The government appears to consider that the time has not yet arrived when it can usefully intervene.

According to police records, Tyson had a wife and child living. In March, 1923, he was ordered to pay his wife $12 a week for support but he lost his temper in court and hurled his hat at the judge. The judge dodged the flying headgear and held Tyson for contempt of court. Later a physician's examinations revealed Tyson to be mentally sound but hysterical.

He sued damages, claiming that the Erie was negligent in allowing a switch engine to crash into the car on which he was working. The verdict is the largest ever returned in a negligence case in Steuben county.

WILL PUNISH ANY GUILTY OF WRONG DOING

Criminal Action May Result From Probe of Oil Reserve Leases —Leases Not Made While Fall Held Office

WILL ACT SLOWLY

Evidence That Can Be Placed Before Grand Jury and Court Must Be Obtained—Fall Remains Silent

Washington, Jan. 25. — Simultaneously with the disclosure today in the senate oil inquiry of another unpaid loan to former Interior Secretary Fall, the White House made known that President Coolidge is preparing to take every action to protect the public interest and to punish those guilty of any wrong doing.

Before the same committee which E. L. Doheny, California oil magnate, told yesterday he had loaned Mr. Fall $100,000 on his personal note while he was secretary of the interior, J. W. Zevely, personal counsel to Harry F. Sinclair, testified today that Mr. Sinclair had loaned Mr. Fall $25,000 in Liberty bonds on a personal note three months after he retired from the cabinet.

As the testimony now stands, the Doheny loan was made more than a year before the [illegible] interests obtained the lease of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval reserve, while the Sinclair loan was made more than a year after the Sinclair interests received the lease of Teapot Dome, Wyo., reserve.

May Take Criminal Action.

Developments in the senate inquiry were discussed today by the cabinet. Afterward the President was represented officially as regarding some of the testimony to point to criminal action. The executive is reluctant to believe that anyone has been guilty of criminal intent, but he feels that the evidence already deduced requires explanation and investigation.

In the President's view two questions already are indicated. One, and the more important, is to bring to justice anyone who has dealt with the situation in any way that is in violation of the criminal laws. The other is to see whether the government has suffered any injuries by reason of the oil reserve leases. If the leases do not seem proper, action looking to their annulment will be taken.

With respect to possible criminal phases of the matters it was made clear that there was no disposition to jump to conclusions; that investigations must be made by the proper authorities to see whether any criminal action will be warranted. It was pointed out that criminal action could not be started on rumors; that substantial evidence which can later be presented to a grand jury and a trial would be required.

Mr. Fall in Seclusion.

Having received evidence of two loans to Fall, the senate committee will turn its attention next to a further effort to clear up testimony regarding cancelled checks of the Hyva corporation, a Sinclair concern, for $68,000 and alleged to have been drawn in favor of Thomas Johnson, foreman of Mr. Fall's New Mexico ranch. Archie Roosevelt and G. D. Wahlberg, Sinclair's secretary, will be recalled tomorrow in this phase of the inquiry.

But the committee will be diverted only temporarily from the $100,000 and $25,000 loans. Mr. Fall will be asked Monday to explain these and other of his financial transactions. While Mr. Zevely was telling of the $25,000 loan in June, 1922, the former secretary was secluded in the Zevely home here under the care of a physician. He declined to make any statement and declared he had made none regarding the Doheny testimony.

EXPERTS SEEK TO LEARN GERMAN RAILROAD STATUS

(By the Associated Press)

Paris, Jan. 25. — The first committee of experts which is examining into Germany's economic and financial condition, held two long sessions which they listened to William M. Acworth, Great Britain, and M. Lefevre, France, both experts on railways. They were questioned with regard to the present status of the Germany railway systems. The hearing will continue tomorrow.

Although no communication was issued by the committee tonight, it is understood that today's discussion revolved around the problem of wiping out the deficit of the German railway administration.

The discussion here of the railway situation is a prelude to a further hearing in Berlin of the testimony of a number of German traffic experts. From their added testimony it is hoped that definite recommendations can be drawn up.

Golfers Have New Ball of Great Distance

A. S. Chatfield driving 310 yards with his pneumatic golf ball.

At last the average Golfer has come into his own! He can now drive a golf ball as great a distance as a professional. A. S. Chatfield of 103 Park Ave., N. Y. has invented the pneumatic golf ball. Through the very process of its construction its balance is scientifically perfect, which for the ordinary dub golfer makes it all that is to be desired. The lead ball is encased in a covering of rubber having 14 projections. This spider in turn is placed in a rubber core which is sealed under a pressure of air 40 lbs to the square inch. This operation makes a pneumatic weighted inner core of the golf ball. If it were desired to drive a golf ball 500 yards the pressure of air in this core would have to be increased to about 80 lbs. to the square inch. However as the United States Golf Association would eliminate golf balls of such distance the Chatfield ball carries 40 lbs air pressure which makes it a shade better than the best golf ball on the market today—distance and balance considered. After being sealed in the rubber core, it is then placed in the winding machines and wound with pure gum rubber until it reaches the proper size for the cover. After this process the outside core is vulcanized and the ball is then ready for play. Mr. Chatfield's new scientifically perfect ball is finding great favor with the professionals and within a short time will be available for the everyday use.

Leonardsville Closes House.

State troopers were at Leonardsville Saturday night and arrested two Italians and a woman who were inhabiting the late O. O. Saunders store that was sold about a year ago to a party at Clayville. They were brought before Justice Coon and the men were fined fifty dollars each. While the hearing was in progress an army of about 100 men cleaned the place, leaving very little of the contents. The stove, chairs, table, etc., were thrown into the street. The large window lights were all broken and the building is badly wrecked. All were told to leave town immediately. The charge was violation of the Volstead law and disorderly conduct.—[Freeman's Journal.

O. H. S. LOSES TO COBLESKILL

Local High School Boys Defeated, 23-12, by Cobleskill High Last Night at That Village — Game Fast.

Making but four points in the first half, and but eight more in the last, the basketball quintet of Oneonta High school met decisive defeat by a score of 23-12 at the hands of the Cobleskill High school squad in a fast game played at the latter village last evening. Both teams played a hard game, but Cobleskill held a constant lead. There was a goodly number of O. H. S. fans in attendance at the game.

The Oneonta team has failed to come out of the slump which has held it for the past two or three weeks, and the present outlook is far from as promising as that which the first of the season seemed to hold in store.

Just what has happened to the team it would be hard for an outsider to determine, still the team is very evidently stale, either from a string of several victories at the outset of the season, or from a breaking of training.

Coach Risedorph has worked long and steadily with his green men, and at one time it looked as if the result would be a fighting O. H. S. team. That spirit can not fail to hold any wearer of the Yellow and White while on the floor. To cary it into practices and into every minute of the day is a more difficult and individual matter, and in this sense of the men on the team, it appears, are failing.

Team, get back to work. Step into the job, and get that old spirit of work, not alone for self but for classmates and school.

Not to slight the work of Cobleskill. Esmay played an accurate game, and accounted for ten of his team's counts. The team played very well and is one that is bound to figure in the final race for the league championship.

The tabulated story:

EVERY DISCHARGED FROM JAIL.

Accused Improperly Convicted in Justice's Court in Worcester.

Upon the return of a writ of habeas corpus before Justice Kellogg in chambers here yesterday Morris B. Every was ordered discharged from the custody of the sheriff of Otsego county, where he had been detained on an improper conviction for violating a parole before Justice Davison in the town of Worcester on December 25.

It appears that the accused was convicted before Justice Davison on November 5 of disorderly conduct, given a suspended sentence and placed on probation. On December 25 he was arrested on a warrant without a deposition, wherein he was charged with having violated his parole and after pleading guilty was convicted and sentenced to the county jail for 30 days.

He was ordered discharged upon the grounds that the certificate failed to show the justice before whom the defendant was brought, that no deposition accompanied the warrant and that the warrant of arrest was defective. Every has been released.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports

BASKETBALL

What is a good remedy for overtraining when it shows itself as listlessness?

Answered by
W. L. LUSH

Coach at Naval Academy for several years and now athletic director at St. John's College, Annapolis, Md.

Overtraining is the result of too much scrimmage and practice. If listlessness shows itself, lay off for a day or two; don't ever look at a basketball during that time and get plenty of sleep. As a general rule, fundamentals should be practiced daily, scrimmage not more than twice a week and of about 20 minutes' duration.

Plenty of sleep, proper food, and common sense are absolutely essential. Basketball is a strenuous game.

Equally Nice on the Turf or the Ice

Some people are fancy tennis players and some are rank skaters, but Nat Niles of Boston is a fancy skater and one of the ranking tennis players of the country. Right now Nat is in the French Alps, gliding and twisting over the ice, pirouetting, leaping, spinning and performing the "tile," "spiral," "vine," and "rule" that make the difficult figures peculiar to artistic fancy skating. With Niles is Miss Theresa Weld Blanchard, who with him, four years ago at the Antwerp Olympics, where they placed fourth in pair skating. Mrs. Blanchard placed third in the ladies' singles and Niles sixth in the men's singles also. They have won the pair skating championship of the United States for years. Sherwin Badger, who has twice been unable to make the trip to the Olympic games for business reasons, is the best single figure skater in this country.

Niles has ranked in the first ten as a tennis player more often than any of his contemporaries, and he has scored many victories over a number of America's best players. He was the inter-scholastic champion in 1900, when he had played tennis only two years.

THE JOB OF BEING A DAD

By FRANK H. CHELEY

President Father and Son League of America

No. 47—A Dad's Part in His Son's Religious Education.

Let us consider briefly in just what ways fathers must help to make the religious education of their sons most effective.

First. The desirability for the training of the boy in some form of family worship. We have grown quite away from the old fashioned family altar of a generation ago for reasons too numerous to mention here, but the pity of it is that, in abandoning the old, we have not taken the time to fashion a new modern type of family worship that will fit in more perfectly to our present needs and ways of living. The true family worship can best be conducted at the breakfast table, and should be more than a mere perfunctory Bible reading; it should be planned to fit into the development of the children and should provide real opportunity for normal self-expression on their parts as well as the adults. Worship should be a natural, sincere and joyo s part of a great life of love, order, beauty, wisdom and happiness.

"Second. Is the encouragement of personal prayer and, as the boy grows older, the observance of a brief 'morning watch' alone in his own room. A conscious adjusting of his own life to the Infinite before he faces the busy world of boy-life that will call for so many fair and just decisions, so many complicated relationships, so many challenges to 'run straight and true.' The matter of developing a personal devotional life in a boy will be comparatively easy where the religious tone of the family is rational and in sympathy with that sort of thing. It is a logical outcome of the family worship in which he has so often had a real yet simple part. It is a great thing for a boy to hear his father pray aloud in the home. Most boys never hear their fathers raise their voices in prayer in all their lives, save, possibly, in a stereotyped family grace.

"Third. Is the observance of grace at meals. Too often we allow this simple worship to become a mere form, and in so doing lose its value. The dominant thought of the day or season or special occasion should be voiced in the family grace. When the boys get old enough, they, too, may be called upon to offer the prayer to advantage.

"Fourth. Is the family use of the Bible. There is no denying the fact that an intelligent understanding of and frequent use of the Bible in the home can be made a most powerful force in the moral and religious development of the boy. Every boy should have a Bible of his own, so that he may grow familiar with its makeup and be able to locate quickly many passages of which he is fond. To bring this about takes toil and time. Any boy can easily be led in this sort of thing when he absolutely cannot be forced. Tell the boy the real story of the Bible; how we came to have it in English today; what it has meant in the history of the world; how it has dominated the lives of the world's best men. Interest him in systematic Bible study because you yourself are interested in it, and believe that it is the only, the manly thing to do, but much worth while.

"Fifth. Apply the various concrete religious truths that develop in family prayer and worship to the actual life of the family. Place the emphasis of your teaching on what the boy is in all his relationship, rather than on what he should be. Teach him to be tolerant of other faiths and to show his personal appreciation of God by his reverence.

"Sixth: Go with the boy to various sorts of religious exercises. Don't send him to Sunday school and church, but go with him. Encourage him in relating himself in real earnest and in assuming his share of the responsibility in various religious undertakings. Encourage his Sunday school work, the work of the young people's societies and so forth. Let him know that you believe in such things and are interested."

CRUSHED BY FALLING TREE

William A. Medbury, Prominent New Lisbon Farmer, Dies Wednesday.

New Lisbon, Jan. 25. — William A. Medbury, a prominent citizen and successful farmer of Pecktown, died at 10:30 Wednesday night from injuries received several days ago while at work in the woods, where a large tree fell on him, nearly crushing him to death. AFTER AN OPERATION

Mrs. Wilke Couldn't Get Back Her Strength Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rochester, Minnesota.—"I had a very serious operation and it seemed as if I could not get my health back after it. I suffered with pain almost constantly. My sister came to help take care of me, and she was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nervousness and a run-down condition. She had me try some of it, and in a very few days' time I began to feel better. In two weeks I hardly knew myself and after taking a couple of bottles more I was up and helping around, and now I am strong and healthy again and am still taking it. It is a pleasure for me to write this to you, and I hope that many other women who are suffering like I was will find out about your medicine. I will give any information I possibly can." —Mrs. JAMES WILKE, 305 E. Center Street, Rochester, Minn.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Wilke.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn Mass.

MADOLIN TODD'S ESSAY.

Third Prize Winner in High School Contest on Oneonta's Need of a Chamber of Commerce.

From time immemorial every city, village, or hamlet has had its public-spirited citizens to whom in a large part, it owed its development and prosperity.

Within the last few years, however, it has been realized that people who were striving in every way to improve their home city could do so much more effectively when organized into a society for that purpo , than when working separately. Therefore, cities began perfecting such organizations under the name "Chamber of Commerce."

When Oneonta became a city, there were many needed improvements. What was most needed, however, was someone to bring these needs before the people in such a manner that they, as taxpayers, would vote for such improvements. There was also a need for someone to interview the Public Service Commission corporation, and individuals to bring about other improvements and industries. To enlighten the residents concerning these needs would take money and a great amount of time. Therefore, many of the public-spirited citizens of Oneonta, who were willing to give of their time and money for the betterment of our city organized a "Chamber of Commerce."

The fruit of their labor is today seen on every hand. In improved streets, better train, express, telegraph and telephone service. Public rest room and dozens of other things, but the one, perhaps, in which we as Oneonta, High school students, are most ainterested in, is the improved recreational facilities in our parks.

A few years ago, there was no place where the boys could play base ball without someone's driving them away, or at least finding fault; no place to skate without walking miles, and then over water so deep that the parents were worried until their return, no place to play tennis, unless you stole a game on the Normal courts, no place to coast in safety, and no play grounds.

Now, largely through the influence of this organization, we have these and many other benefits.

Therefore, let us all say, "Long Live the Oneonta Chamber of Commerce."

Getman Lectures at Roxbury.

A. K. Getman, supervisor of agricultural education, will give a lecture at the Teachers' conference at Roxbury on Friday, Feb. 1. He will take up the plan of the State Education department for teaching elementary agriculture in rural schools. Mr. Getman worked this plan out and is thus able to give the teachers first hand information. He is very much interested in boys and girls and is a champion of their cause.

Easy Lessons in AUCTION BRIDGE
New Series

COPYRIGHT 1923 BY HOYLE, JR.

ARTICLE No. 8

Many players who refuse to accept the conventional bids, probably do so because they have never taken the trouble to find out the reason for them. They object to bidding one heart if they hold five hearts to the king, queen or jack and one or more outside tricks as it is with five hearts to an ace king and no outside tricks. This statement is correct but the reason such suits are not bid is because it is impossible to give exact information to partner. The best theory of Auction bidding is to give exact information whenever possible. For that reason, all bids that may have a double meaning have been eliminated. To bid one heart as dealer with a hand that contains the following:

Hearts—Q, 9, 8, 4, 2
Clubs—10, 7
Diamonds—A, 10, 6
Spades—K, 9, 4

is to make partner guess as to the strength of the hand. There is not a sure trick in hearts and there is no way for him to guess in what suits the tricks really are. Guesses, no matter how brilliant, cannot cope with cold, hard facts.

Make your original bids mean something definite to your partner for he must know the truth about your cards if the partnership is to be successful. Don't make original bids without the high cards in the suit bid. Otherwise your partner will assist your bid thinking you have the high cards of your suit and then you may be doubled and lose a big penalty. Or your opponents may bid up to a point where your partner first bid was sound. If it was not, then you are in trouble and you cannot blame your partner.

When you play Auction, you are bidding for the privilege of playing the hand. All the conventions are based on common sense. Do not make a bid that you cannot back up, either as an offensive or defensive proposition.

These requirements for original bids are particularly important on close hands where one side can make four hearts and the other side four spades. By giving exact information to your partner every time you bid, you enable him to determine before the hand is played just about how many tricks you and your opponents can make and be can bid or double accordingly.

If one side figures that their adversaries can make four spades it is much to their advantage to bid five hearts, if by so doing they will not lose the contract by more than a trick or so. Their opponents may also make the mistake of bidding five spades. This is possible only when the bidding is sound and gives exact information. Never make your partner guess if you can help it for he is more apt to guess wrong than right.

The following hand is a good example:

	Hearts—3 Clubs—K, Q, 8, 7 Diamonds—K, 10, 8, 6 Spades—Q, J, 10, 3
Hearts—K, Q, J, 9, 4 Clubs—A, 5 Diamonds—Q, 4, 2 Spades—7, 4, 2	Y / A Z / B	Hearts—A, 8, 7, 6, 2 Clubs—10, 9, 6, 3 Diamonds—A, 9, 7, 5 Spades—None
	Hearts—10, 5 Clubs—J, 4, 2 Diamonds—J, 3 Spades—A, K, 9, 8, 6, 5

Z dealt and bid one spade and A bid two hearts. A-B bid their hand to four hearts and when overbid by Y-Z with four spades, correctly bid five hearts, were doubled and only lost 100 points. As Y-Z could have made four spades, A-B saved a game at the expense of 100 points less four honors, a net loss of 66 points. This kind of bidding is good Auction but only possible when the bidding is sound.

Here is another example of clever overbidding that saved a game:

	Hearts—Q, 9, 8, 3, 2 Clubs—K, Q, 5, 2 Diamonds—J, 6, 4, 2 Spades—None
Hearts—K Clubs—J, 10, 8, 6, 4 Diamonds—A Spades—Q, J, 9, 7, 6, 5	Y / A Z / B	Hearts—A, 6, 4 Clubs—9, 7 Diamonds—Q, 8, 7, 5, 3 Spades—10, 8, 3
	Hearts—J, 10, 7, 5 Clubs—A, 3 Diamonds—K, 10, 9 Spades—A, K, 4, 2

Z dealt and bid one no-trump. A bid two spades, Y three hearts and B and Z passed. A bid three spades, Y and A passed and Z bid four hearts. A now realized that Y-Z could probably make four hearts and that he could save game by bidding four spades. It is evident that Y-Z can make four hearts and that A-B will not lose their contract by more than two tricks. If doubled they will save a game at the expense of 200 points less simple honors, a net loss of 182 points. It is on close hands such as these that the good player shows his quality. Such accurate deductions are possible only when based on the exact information given by the original bid. Let your opening or original bid always give exact information.

Problem No. 4

	Hearts—A, 7, 6 Clubs—Q, J, 9, 7, 6 Diamonds—A, 2 Spades—A, 4, 2
Hearts—Q, 10, 3 Clubs—10, 8, 3 Diamonds—5, 4, 3 Spades—K, Q, J, 10	Y / A Z / B	Hearts—9, 8, 5, 2 Clubs—5, 4, 2 Diamonds—Q, 10, 9, 8 Spades—9, 3
	Hearts—K, J, 4 Clubs—A, K Diamonds—K, J, 7, 6 Spades—8, 7, 6, 5

Z, the dealer, bid one no-trump. All passed and A led the king of spades. The problem is to advise a finesse that will insure perfect defense. Solution in next article.

JOINT BUREAU MEETING.

North Franklin Farm and Home Organization Have Good Attendance.

North Franklin, Jan. 25. — There was a fair attendance at the joint meeting of the Farm and Home bureau. The cold wave of Monday and Tuesday kept some at home to look after cellars and frozen water pipes. There was a very interesting program carried out. The children of the local school helped out with the singing, which was led by Mr. King of Trumansburg; also the lecture on health and nutrition by Dr. Heaton of Brooklyn was fine. Altogether the meeting was much enjoyed by all present.

TROOPERS AND AUTO LAWS.

Owners of automobiles, and for that matter pedestrians and everybody else who have occasion to use the highways of the state will be interested in a bill prepared by Assemblyman Bert Lord of Chenango, which it is understood he will introduce in the lower house of the legislature on Monday. Under its provisions one hundred motorcycle-equipped state troopers will be added to the present force and assigned to the motor vehicle bureau to assist in stricter enforcement of the highway laws, their work being patrol duty along the important highways of the state.

In an interview Thursday at Albany Mr. Lord says that the entire attention of the motor vehicle bureau is now directed to collection of taxes, instead of some of it to the enforcement of laws; and that many of the accidents of the day are caused by lack of proper enforcement. "The state police at the present time," said Mr. Lord, "are acting as constables and deputy sheriffs, looking after petty thieves and violators of the law that in many instances should be taken care of by the local authorities. But with this force of 100 men equipped with motorcycles, all the important thoroughfares of the state could be patroled and the city law can be enforced."

The provisions of this bill are unquestionably such as will appeal to every owner of a motor car, who, personally endeavoring to obey the law, is at the same time jeopardized by the reckless and unlawful acts of others. Reckless driving, the glaring headlight nuisance, the operation of cars by intoxicated men are some of the things which these men will be expected to look after should the bill become a law. It is a measure which should have the support of every law-abiding citizen, and not only individuals but the automobile clubs throughout the state should communicate with their representatives at Albany, urging their hearty support. It is a bill which should not be sidetracked or pigeonholed, and finally overlooked in the closing days of the session. On the other hand it should be pushed to immediate passage.

PAVING CONDITIONS.

In view of the fact that no inconsiderable speculation has been engaged in and criticism expressed relative to a portion of the Main street pavement, put down last season by the McDonald company, it is not amiss to call attention to the fact that the company itself is said to understand the condition and to be ready to remedy it as soon as the spring weather is such as to make this possible. With this in view the machinery of the company has been left in Oneonta, and the necessary material is understood to have been ordered for the work, the character of which is fully set forth in the report of the city engineer, now on file with the board.

That the weather last fall was unfavorable for the paving which was done east of the Broad street corner is well understood, and it is evident that the present exact condition cannot be determined until the warm days of spring. Moreover, there has been retained from the contract price a sum fully adequate to cover all expenses of replacement. When both these facts are taken into account, it would appear that there is no reason for anxiety.

$1,000 For First Offenders.

With 250 new violations of the Volstead act listed for disposition at the term of federal court last week at Albany, Judge Frank Cooper and the United States attorney's office were aroused over the situation. Judge Cooper, it was learned, has decided to adopt a policy of fining every first offender $1,000. If that does not serve to break up the bootlegging in Central and Northern New York, he will make the penalties even more severe.

THE GUIDE POST—BY HENRY VANDYKE

Not Knowing But Believing

He went out, not knowing whither he went.—Heb. 11:8.

Abraham believed.

He was bound by the ties of the world, of habit, of social order, of self-interest — by all those delicate and innumerable threads which seem to fasten a man to the ground, as the Lilliputians fastened Gulliver, and make liberty of thought, of belief, of conduct impossible.

But in the midst of his bondage Abraham heard the voice of the God who had a message, a mission, a call for his soul—a message which meant spiritual freedom, a mission which could only be fulfilled by obedience, a call which said:

"Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto the land that I will show thee."

Think what that involved—separation from the past, resignation of all his customs and plans of life, the entrance upon an untrodden path, the following of an unseen and absolute guidance, the consecration of his life to a journey through strange lands, among strange people, towards a strange goal—the final and supreme discovery of his soul.

But Abraham obeyed the call.

"He went out, not knowing whither he went."

[illegible] was faith.

OF A NUMBER OF THINGS

Sound Spirit of Enterprise.

Mr. Denby in urging the value of an extensive Arctic aero exploration shows a sound spirit of enterprise, even if his choice of the means may seem rash. Experience with regard to past discoveries gives him the better of the argument with those who would scorn the unknown Arctic areas as not worth having.—[New York Sun.

The National Gallery.

Can Enforce Law.

Nothing has been more clearly shown by the success in compelling obedience to the law in Philadelphia than that the law can be enforced. The same proof is adducible in every city and town in the United States, and in every community in the world.—[Christian Science Monitor.

United States and Mexico.

No reason exists for thinking that this government is more concerned with the property rights of its citizens in the neighboring nation than it is with human rights. Nevertheless, its patience again is being severely tested. There is need for discretion, but also for firmness. — [Indianapolis News.

Lenin.

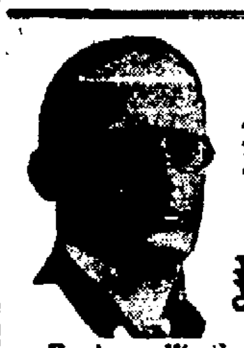

Lenin's career may be treated on the assumption that he lived long enough to see the revolutionary government of which he was the chief founder established on the ruins of the czardom which he helped to destroy. In any case he would be one of the outstanding figures of our age who could not be ignored even by his most bitter opponents, yet his position in history will be the greater if he is to stand as the founder of a government that is destined, perhaps with gradual modifications, to endure. Such a result, which seems more probable now than a few years ago, would take him out of the class of leaders of revolt, the Gracchi, the Rienzis and the Jack Cades, and put him with the honored figures who have monuments in public squares and about whose names as the centuries roll by a rich atmosphere of patriotic tradition gathers which only ruthless iconoclasts ignore.—[Springfield Republican.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

AN UNUSUAL CAUSE.

A chap consulted a specialist regarding a severe earache.

The specialist made a careful examination during which he was unable to discover any inflammation of the middle ear—the usual cause of ear ache.

There was no foreign body in the ear. Nor could any ulcer or other trouble be found with the tongue.

The teeth were sound and an X-ray taken a week previous showed no decayed teeth. There were no boils or abscesses in the canal, and the physician was puzzled.

As the man talked to the physician, the actual speaking seemed to hurt him.

The physician took hold of the lower jaw and moved it up and down. The patient nearly cried with the pain.

Does it hurt you to eat?

"Yes."

Does it hurt you to talk?

"Yes."

"Your trouble is rheumatism."

"Rheumatism of the ear?" questioned the man.

"No! Your rheumatism is in the joint between your lower and upper jaw just under the ear."

And this proved to be the case, as the measures taken to remove the cause of the rheumatism got rid also of the pain in the ear.

You are apt to forget this point when thinking of ear pain, but it is a more common cause than is suspected.

The mouth of modern man is not as large as it was some years back.

It would seem that nature intends to grow our full number of teeth—32—irrespective of the size of the mouth. And so the last molar—the wisdom tooth—the one that comes last and goes first, is often greatly crowded for room when it tries to make a place for itself in your mouth.

And this also is a frequent cause of pain in the ear, as these four wisdom teeth try to meet one another on each side right at the joint, between the upper and lower jaws.

And so, if you have pain in the ear and there does not seem to be any temperature, nor any local cause in the ear itself, take a look at the spot where your wisdom teeth are located, right at the back of the mouth. If you are young they may be trying to come through. If you are a bit older they may be decaying. However, don't overlook the fact that the joint itself—the hinge that swings your lower jaw, may have a touch of rheumatism just as any other joint. So then look for the cause. It is always there.

Electric Lights at Skating Park.

Editor of The Star:

For years Oneonta has lacked a decent place where its children and adults could indulge in skating, wholesome, invigorating out door sport. Now a place has been provided, the pond in Neahwa park, but a place is practically all. It is true that [illegible] around the pond, absolutely necessary if parents are to allow their children to use the pond after dark, and if evening skating meets are to be held, are conspicuous by their absence.

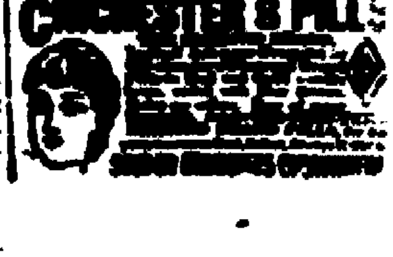

It is at night when most people desire to skate. As it is now, a person takes his life in his hands when he essays to circle the pond in the dark. Broken bones, if not worse, are certain to result, if the pond is used for night skating without lights.

Several hundred people were present Thursday eve at the skating meet. Lanterns furnished the only means of illumination and as a result the spectators saw very little of the races and the participants and those close to the ice were in constant danger.

Cannot some way be found to finance the placing of lights around the pond? If the park commission has no available funds, cannot the city fathers make an appropriation from the general fund?

PIG CLUB FOSTERED BY BANK

First National of Cooperstown Offers Prizes to Boys and Girls Exhibiting Porkers.

Squeals and grunts from pigs will mix with joyful shouts and laughter of Otsego County boys and girls this summer if the plans of the Junior Extension board and First National bank of Cooperstown materialize. Any boy or girl in the county 10 to 20 years of age may join the county pig club by enrolling in one of the pig projects in junior project work. The bank is co-operating by giving two five dollar prizes.

Mr. Hale, cashier of the First National, is of the opinion that Otsego county farmers would do well to grow more pigs, thus using the waste of dairy and kitchen. To prove this the bank fosters the Pig club, and records of club members reporting last year show an average profit for work done of $8.68. The 1923 club had 19 members, six of whom exhibited at the fairs, three at Cooperstown and three at Morris. Already five are enrolled for 1924, three of whom have purebred sow pigs from [illegible] the purebred breeding business.

The club this year will have three divisions—for market pigs, purebred sow pigs and purebred sow with litter. The bank will give prizes in the former two classes.

Any boy or girl who wishes to borrow money with which to buy a pig may do so at the bank by applying through the County club agent. If they wish help in locating a good pig they can procure this help from County Club Agent Towsley at Cooperstown.

A. M. Jones, Franklin dealer in Norwich and Oneonta, recently in recognition of the fact that he delivered in 1923 more cars at retail than any other Franklin dealer in his group, Group G, has been awarded a special prize by the company. LOCAL MENTION —The Five Spots basketball team of this city will play the town team of Deposit, in that village, this evening.

—Dauley & Wright have just completed the erection of a large sarcophagus Barre granite monument and four markers in the Woodbourne cemetery for George Smith, county judge of Sullivan county.

—Numerous High school students motored or climbed to Cobleskill yesterday afternoon to witness the basketball game there, reported elsewhere in this issue. The Oneonta players should not have suffered for lack of rooters.

—That the winter has been unusually mild is shown by the fact that during the month thus far only 11 deaths have been reported in the city. The average in recent years for the first 25 days of January would be easily twice that number.

—Postmaster Sherman, as county chairman of the Harding Memorial fund, reports that contributions continue to come in from residents of the city and county and that his prediction that the fund would reach $200 is certain to be fulfilled.

—Some 251 hunting licenses have been issued for 1924 thus far at the city clerk's office, an unusually large number considering that little game can now be legally hunted. The total for 1923 was 1,150, of which three or four were to non-residents.

—Those having charge of the dance to be held by the Oneonta Public Park and Playground Improvement association on next Wednesday evening urge that all residents of the city purchase their tickets at the various stores in the city to alleviate the congestion at the door on that evening.

—A. C. Lange, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., will supply the pulpit of the Worcester Presbyterian church tomorrow, both morning and evening. At the morning service he will speak from the theme, "God's Still Voice," and in the evening, at a union service of all the churches. His subject will be, "Living Things."

Meetings Today.

Members of the Royal Rebekah lodge will meet at the home of Miss Ethel Gardner, 2 Gardner place, at 1:30 o'clock today to attend in a body the funeral of Mrs. R. R. Mackey to be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Putting a Blister on a Porcupine

Is as difficult as making some people understand what honest co-operation will do for them, when backed by state laws and supervision. For 35 years I have been helping their neighbors to get ahead of them and make good, yet they whine and cuss about hard luck. When I knock at their door, with an opportunity for a fair chance and square deal, they don't even say "come in." Don't you hear the whine because they didn't open the door? Well, I'm now giving them another chance to get in with my new big bunch of little fellers, who are going to learn how honest co-operation helps them, by having a nice slice of several million dollars that I am safely rolling up from small amounts. I'm wondering if they'll stick to the false idea that one head going it alone is better than my 12 old and experienced heads, who unselfishly work for the good of all, without any commissions, rake offs or big salaries and where all gains are divided equitably. What a queer old world. Wake up or shut up. I'm the safe and sane Oneonta Building and Loan association. advt 1t

TO ONEONTA CITIZENS

Chamber of Commerce Membership Committee Addresses Open Letter to Those Interested in Welfare of City.

The following open letter from the Oneonta Chamber of Commerce executive committee of the membership committee is addressed to the citizens of Oneonta:

Fellow citizens: The live, progressive men of this city are building an efficient, up-to-date Chamber of Commerce. This organization is to be an instrument for the advancement of all our civic, commercial and industrial activities. It will be the leader of the "Progress for Oneonta" spirit and we want it to be your organization and have it reflect your ideals and your pride in your city.

You and we know the value of leadership and the need of it, if Oneonta is to hold her own in the race for city supremacy. This Chamber of Commerce will be the force to carry forward the new awakening civic spirit. It will be the sales force that will advertise and sell our community, and by its initiative and its support of all the things that tend to community advancement will be the potent factor in the future growth and development of the city. Action of this kind means your personal welfare and the future of Oneonta. We feel sure that you will be glad to give your support to this important work.

Oneonta needs you. She needs your ideals and your co-operation. Give expression to these through the Chamber of Commerce. A circular entitled "Oneonta Progress" is being sent out. When you receive your copy, take five minutes to read it through and then realize the value of this organization to Oneonta; then let us learn your ideas.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week a number of your fellow citizens will call on you. Give them a careful hearing. They are busy men like yourself. They are devoting their time and energy for the creating of a modern Chamber of Commerce. If you have read the list of men who are backing this movement, you must be impressed with the fact that our very best citizenship is interested and is doing everything to make it a success. Evidently they feel that their message is vitally important to you, or they would remain at their desks. They know that four hundred men working together can accomplish practically anything for Oneonta, and they want you to be one of them.

Offer your membership and your service.

Yours for a greater Oneonta.

URGES HEARTY SUPPORT

The writer believes that the Chamber of Commerce is of inestimable value to Oneonta. It is the working power in the upbuilding of the community. It stands for better citizenship and the promotion of the city's best interests. I hope that its usefulness and membership many increase with each succeeding year.

Friendly co-operation will accomplish more for the community than an even larger group of persons working individually, though all may have community welfare in mind. The Chamber of Commerce, in my judgment, stands for better acquaintance and better citizenship, and so, through co-operation, for the realizing of the better city. This organization has rendered such valuable service to Oneonta that it deserves the support of all good citizens.

Faculty Reception at State Normal.

The faculty of the Oneonta State Normal school tendered their annual reception to the students of the school last evening in the Normal gymnasium. Following the receiving which commenced at 7:30 o'clock, a short and highly enjoyable program was presented. "Solemn Pride," and interesting short play was presented by one of the English classes of the school.

An unique number, a composite class, was given by the members of Miss Florence Matteson' Council group. Another play, "The Withered Doctor," was cleverly done by the council group of Miss Irene Posthill. When the council group of Miss Kathrine Tobey gave their review of the styles of yesterday and of today in hair dressing, a good laugh was enjoyed by everyone, since everytype was burlesqued. In closing the program Miss Edna Tripp rendered "The Gypsy Girl," a violin solo, which was very well rendered.

Refreshments were served and the 200 girls present enjoyed dancing for the remainder of the evening

MANUFACTURERS ASSISTING

Local Employers Pledge Every Help Following Kayser Shut-Down—Committee to Assist Chamber in Locating New Industry.

That the various manufacturers employing female labor are increasing their forces to the maximum point within their authority, in order to take charge, as far as possible, of those laid off by the announced shut-down of the Kayser plant, was assurance given at a special meeting of the Oneonta Manufacturers association held last evening at the Chamber of Commerce offices. Steps were taken to insure that those most in need of work especially those supporting dependents with their wages, are given primary consideration in employment at this time.

A committee was appointed to co-operate with the special industrial comittee of the Chamber of Commerce in securing the most desirable occupancy of the Kayser plant by an industrial concern within the shortest time possible, the committee consisting of President William Horn, Harry Broas, and Albert Lamb.

Harry Broas of the Riverside Manufacturing company was elected vice-president of the association to succeed Charles R. Kovar, resigned.

Cafe Parlor Car Sundays on D. & H.

Effective Sundays, January 27, February 3 and 10, the D. & H. company will operate a cafe parlor car on train 211, Albany to Binghamton, and on train 217, Binghamton to Albany. Car will serve breakfast and noon-day meal on train 214, and evening meal on train 217.

The amount of patronage given the car will, no doubt, determine whether or not its operation will be continued Sundays after February 10.

Oneonta Woman Painfully Injured.

Mrs. K. Buell of this city, who had been visiting friends in Binghamton and was returning home on D. & H. train 311 Thursday evening, made a mis-step in alighting from the car, and as a result sustained a fracture of the right leg, her left ankle being seriously sprained at the same time. She was taken at once to the Fox hospital, and at a late hour yesterday was reported to be resting as comfortably as could be expected.

To Serve Monthly Suppers.

The ladies of St. James' church plan to serve a supper the first week of each month during the winter and spring. The first will be given Saturday, February 2. There will be a further announcement later.

A clean store plus clean goods plus modern appointments plus good service plus courtesy and attention is a combination hard to beat. That's us. Finigan's grocery. advt 2t

MRS. GEO. W. FAIRCHILD DIES

ONE HIGHLY ESTEEMED IN ONEONTA, NEW YORK AND WASHINGTON.

Critical Illness of Only Two Weeks' Duration — Native of Davenport and Long a Resident of This City—Many Friends Deplore Her Demise —Funeral Sunday Afternoon.

Many friends not only in Oneonta but in New York city and in Washington, where she was for many years a leading figure in the social life of the capital, will learn with deep regret of the death at 7 o'clock last evening of Josephine Mills Fairchild, wife of Hon. George W. Fairchild of this city and of New York. Though she had not been in good health for several years, her critical illness was of only about two weeks' duration, death being of acute nephritis, following a cold which early in January she contracted.

The funeral services, which will be private, will be held at her late home, 318 Main street, at 2:30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, Dr James C. Russell of the First Presbyterian church will officiate and the body will be placed in the mausoleum at Glenwood for interment later.

Mrs. Fairchild was the only child of William and Frances (Mills) Sherman and was born in Davenport May 22, 1859. Her early life was spent in that township, where she attended the local schools. Afterwards she was a student of the Delaware Literary Institute at Franklin, and of the Maplewood Institute at Pittsfield, Mass. After graduation, and the death of her mother, her home was for several years at the Windsor hotel in New York city, as a member of the family of her uncle, the late Joseph Mills, of whose wife she was a namesake, and following his demise of that of Dr. and Mrs. William N. Gilchrist, the latter an aunt of Mrs. Fairchild. Joseph Mills, the uncle above named, was a cousin of D. O. Mills and was for years in partnership with him as broker and banker. It is noted as an unusual fact that of a family of seven brothers and sisters, she was the only descendant in the next generation.

Her marriage to Mr. Fairchild was at the Windsor hotel in New York city on February 18, 1891, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Dr. Morgan of the Church of Heavenly Rest. Following their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Fairchild spent several months abroad, visiting Egypt, Syria, the Holy land and the principal capitals of Europe. On their return they acquired the house at 318 Main street, where they had since resided and to which several additions and improvements, devised and directed by her fine taste and judgment, have at intervals been made. In this home she had gathered the rare treasures which with judgment she had selected, and which sh had arranged with an artistic taste alike unusual and remarkable. Though she had traveled much and widely, Oneonta was in fullest sense her home, and to it she always gladly returned, and unquestionably it was to her a supreme satisfaction that her last days could be spent in her home, with her family and friends, and amidst the objects of art which she had gleaned from the wide world.

In addition to the trip above referred to Mrs. Fairchild ... ed much in Europe, with practically every country of which she was familiar, and scarcely less in America. Two trips taken by her were of special interest, one of them to the city of Mexico on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of the Mexican republic, accompanying Congressman Fairchild and other statesmen of national reputation, among them being ex-Ambassador Girard and Curtis Guild, the latter as chairman, and all bearing for the occasion the rank of ambassadors plenipotentiary. The party during its Mexican sojourn was assigned to a palace especially fitted for its use by order of President Diaz. The later trip was to Honolulu, Mr. Fairchild being a member of a special congressional committee visiting the Hawaiian islands.

During the twelve years of her life in Washington, Mrs. Fairchild made many friends alike in political, residential and diplomatic circles of the national capital, where her fine bearing, queenly appearance and gracious manner made her a marked figure at any social event. In connection with this it should be noted that by special request to Ambassador Harvey by the late President Harding, who was a warm personal friend of the deceased, Mrs. Fairchild was to have been presented at the English court in Buckingham palace in June last, an exceptional honor which her illness at that time prevented her from receiving.

Mrs. Fairchild was a member of the Colonial Dames and of the Daughters of the American Revolution, being a member of the board of directors of the state chapter, and a warm personal friend of Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, president general of the latter organization. She was ... of Oneonta and the Woman's Congressional club of Washington. In the latter city she held an exceptional position, and during the term of Vice President Sherman was a well-known member of the vice-presidential social circle.

Mrs. Fairchild, to exceptional social and intellectual attainments, added many notable personal characteristics. She was a woman of highest character and to a marked degree interested in the life of the community in which for thirty years she resided, and in addition to many public benefactions was also unostentatiously generous, it being noted that many young men and women, afterwards graduates of the Oneonta Normal and of colleges, received their education through her quiet benefactions. She was a woman of kindly heart, deeply devoted to her home and family and even to the last moments of life her thoughts dwelt upon the son who was the object of her deep devotion. To a greater degree than perhaps will at first be understood she will be missed in Oneonta.

The surviving members of her immediate family are her husband and one son, Sherman Mills Fairchild, also of this city. Miss Jennie M. Fairchild and Miss May Fairchild, also of Oneonta, are her sisters-in-law, and the latter has for several years been a member of the household. Other relatives are her cousins in this city—Mrs. Julian C. Smith, Elbridge Sherman, Miss Jennie Sherman and Postmaster Frank C. Sherman. To the family so greatly bereaved all who knew the deceased and appreciated her notable qualities of mind and heart, will extend their sympathy in a bereavement not merely personal, but which will be felt by everyone who knew her.

MARRIAGES.

Smith-Brainerd.

Charles Dennison Smith of Morris and Miss Bernice Antoinette Brainerd of this city were quietly married at the parsonage of the First Presbyterian church last evening at 7 o'clock by Dr. J. C. Russell. They left immediately on a short wedding trip and upon their return will be at home at 8 Park street, this city.

The bride is a graduate of the Oneonta High school and the Oneonta State Normal school, and for some time has been teaching at the River street school. She will continue in her duties there for a time at least.

Mr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith of Elm Grove, Morris, and is employed in a garage there. However he hopes soon to locate in Oneonta where the young couple will make their home.

Miss Brainerd has many friends in this city and Mr. Smith in the vicinity of Morris who will extend congratulations and best wishes.

Miss Forster Surprised.

At the home of Mrs. Ralph Brown on Cedar street the members of the Agonian sorority surprised Miss Anne Forster with a shower in anticipation of her coming marriage. About twenty-five guests were present, including Mrs. Samuel Forster of Schenectady. Miss Forster was presented with a coffee percolator and tray. The early part of the evening was spent socially and late in the evening delicious refreshments were served. The guests departed at a late hour, extending best wishes to Miss Forster.

RHETORICALS

Interesting Program Presented—Of Different Type Than First Program —Parts Well Played—Musical Numbers Especially Fine.

The second rhetorical program to be given at the Normal school this year was of a different variety than the first, although not surpassing it in quality, and afforded an interesting change. The first number on the program was a musical one, "Who Is Sylvia" by Schubert taken from "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" by William Shakespeare, sung by the school chorus.

"Alice Brown, Interpeter of New England," given by Grace Utter came second on the program. In her selection Miss Utter greeted her audience and gave a short sketch of the life and works of Alice Brown, the author with whom the afternoon was to be spent. Miss Utter discussed Miss Brown in a very interesting manner, never losing the attention of her audience. She explained that Miss Brown's field is New England and her people "old Yankee stock." In her earlier years Miss Brown wrote practically exclusively old New England dialect tales but during her later years has turned from them to the psychoanalytic novel. Miss Utter prepared the audience for the play explaining that it was the Alice Brown of Boston who wrote "Joint Owners in Spain," which in reality was a short story dramatized.

The third number on the program was a Negro Spiritual by the Glee club, "Deep River." As usual the music was especially fine and was fully appreciated by the audience.

At the close of the music "Joint Owners in Spain" by Alice Brown was presented. The scene was laid in a room in the Old Ladies' Home on an early winter's afternoon. The scene opened showing Mrs. Fullerton, an inmate ready to leave. The part was taken by Anne Cleary who interpreted it admirably. In portraying the absent-mindedness of the old lady, Miss Cleary added a touch of pathos as well as humor.

Mrs. Mitchell, a director of the Home, was played by Helen Rouy. As director, it was her duty to insure peace among the inmates which she endeavored to do to the best of her ability. In portraying the clear judgment of the director in dealing with two of the inmates Miss Rouy brought out the fairness of these old New Englanders.

Lydia Horton who took the part of Mrs. Dyer, a second inmate, acted the part of an elderly woman inclined to talk continually in ineffectual efforts to defend herself from imaginary wrongs. She somewhat tryed the patience of the director who, in an effort to make matters more congenial, decides to put Mrs. Dyer and Mrs. Blair together as room-mates.

Mrs. Blair, an inmate prominent for possessing the most unmanageable temper in the Home, was played by Kedine DeProose. Miss DeProose in interpreting her part caused much amusement. Her originality in dividing the room into two separate parts by a chalk-line led to the friendship of the two.

Although the play was humorous in its theme it portrays exactly the life of the old New England people and those taking part in the play pictured in detail the characteristics of these people.

The inter-sorority council, composed of the presidents of sororities and one other representative and a faculty advisor, held a banquet at the Elks' club on last Wednesday night, the palm room having been obtained for the occasion. Miss Matteson proved to be a most entertaining one and in her toasts called upon Miss Pauline Peters, Miss Pearl Noyes, Professor L. D. Taggart and Professor A. M. Curtis, all of whom responded in an interesting and clever manner, giving the members of the council many valuable suggestions. A piano solo, a minuet by Chopin, played by Mary Ronan, who is a member of the council, met with hearty applause. The council had as their guests several members of the faculty.

T. B. ERADICATION

State Department of Farms and Markets Offers Great Protective Contribution to Public Welfare.

Albany, Jan. 25. — In the service which it performs in its well organized effort towards control and eradication of bovine tuberculosis, the New York State Department of Farms and Markets claims to offer its greatest protective contribution to public welfare. Bovine tuberculosis, which scientists have shown may be transmitted to the human family, is not only a menace to the health of humanity, but is also disastrous from an economic point of view, since cattle affected by it are not only poor producers but are eventually practically worthless.

Investigation has indicated that the bovine bacillus transmitted through milk to the systems of young children may remain dormant for a long period, undergoing a transmutation of form and then attacking the tissues and developing a tuberculous condition. It is, therefore, largely from a public health point of view that the department is waging its campaign for the cleaning up of the herds of the state through the tuberculin test, and it is obvious that this should be accomplished with the least possible delay, to the end that this source of infection may be reduced to a minimum, department officials say.

The presence of tuberculosis in cattle was first recognized about 30 years ago and the department of Farms and Markets, formerly the Department of Agriculture, has been engaged in a campaign for its suppression for about 25 years. In the last few years, however, it has come to be realized more and more that tubercu- [illegible] ... nomically, but that it takes its toll of human life.

In 1915 plans were laid in the department for an intensive campaign whose object was the weeding out of tuberculous cattle, with the result that New York state now stands in the lead among the states in the union in the number of cattle under supervision and in the number of herds accredited free from tuberculosis. In the last few years a larger number of cattle have been tested than were tested previous to this time in the years since the tuberculosis work was inaugurated. New York state's leadership in this work is well recognized by other states who are continually seeking information with regard to the methods employed here in eradication and control.

Application of Test Important.

The application of the tuberculin test, which is made under the supervision of the department, is an important part of this work. The tuberculin is administered by three methods—the subcutaneous, intradermic, and opthalmic—and the reaction after the tuberculin is injected determines whether the animal is affected with tuberculosis. The tuberculin test is applied once and a record submitted to the department. If the animal fails to show a tuberculous condition and also fails to respond twelve months later to a similar test, it is held free from the disease, and a herd of animals so tested is declared to be tuberculosis-free, or what is more commonly known as an accredited herd.

The animals showing a tuberculosis condition after test are slaughtered under "post mortem" and the state and federal departments reimburse the owner for slaughtered cattle as follows:

Maximum for pure-bred cattle — $112.50 by the state; $50.00 by the federal government.

Maximum for grade cattle—$67.50 by the state; $25.00 by the federal government.

The cattle are appraised, however, and in no case can an owner receive more for an animal than its appraised value.

Testing Records Broken.

In the last year heavy pressure has been brought upon the department to speed up this testing work, with the result that all records have been broken and some idea of this intensive effort may be obtained from the fact that during the six months of the existing fiscal year, July to December, 239,654 cattle were tested, disclosing 25,994 tuberculous animals. The testing was being pushed in the corresponding six months of the previous fiscal year, but even with this extraordinary effort in that period only 158,619 animals were tested, disclosing 16,504 reactors.

During the present fiscal year 22 counties have been co-operating in the carrying on of the newly inaugurated intensive area work as compared to only 13 counties in the previous fiscal year.

In New York state there are approximately 2,150,000 dairy cattle and of this number there are only 72,000 which may be listed as accredited tuberculosis-free, representing some 4,000 herds. In spite of the intensive effort of the Department of Farms and Markets in the campaign of eradication, only about 25 per cent of the total number of cattle, or 540,000, have been given the test.

Diseased cattle, the department shows produce disease persons. It is suggested that milk freer from disease germs, improved water supplies, and supervision as to the freedom of adulteration of the food supply, have been important factors in advancing public health, and therefore in extending the span of life.

Commissioner Berne A. Pyrke of the Department of Farms and Markets, stated that the policy of the department would be to press forward this campaign for the eradication and control of this disease in cattle so that the bovine bacillus shall no longer constitute a menace to the human family, especially to children.

WHY CALLED "CHENANGO."

Interesting Bit of History Clipped from State Bulletin to Schools.

A new feature of the State Bulletin to Schools a monthly periodical issued by the State Education Department at Albany, appears in the January issue. Its title is "Origin of Names of New York Counties," and taking up the list alphabetically two pages of each number will be devoted to it. In the latest issue there appears the following relative to adjoining Chenango:

Chenango County.

The name "Chenango" is derived from the Onondaga Indian word, "Ochenango," meaning "large bull-thistle." The name is taken from that of the Iroquois village situated north of Binghamton on the Chenango river. It was there that the Iroquois settled their Nanticoke Indian captives together with the remnants of their Shawnee, Mahikan and Wappinger vassals. These Indians lived at Chenango from 1748 to 1754, when they removed under the protection of the Delawares and later became incorporated in that tribe.

The name is applied to the Chenango river, Chenango lake as well as the county, and in Broome county to a township and to several villages.

Chenango county was set aside from Tioga and Herkimer counties in 1798.

FIND NEW GOLD FIELD IN SIBERIA

Stanovol Belt Heralded as Discovery of Greater Importance Than the Klondike.

New York.—The Stanovol gold belt of Siberia is heralded as "a potential discovery of far greater importance than any of the isolated Alaska or Klondike discoveries of the last century," by Chester Wells Purington, Harvard graduate, mining engineer and geologist of Yokohama, in a report to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. Since the receipt of this report, the result of several years of investigation, news has reached the national headquarters of the institute here that Purington was lost in the Tokyo disaster in a vain attempt to save his two children after having rescued his wife.

Purington's report, based on exhaustive study of voluminous literature, maps and statistics and many personal journeys and field inspections of various parts of Siberia, states the conclusions that "the area adjacent to the Stanovol, Zhugd-Zhur and Yablonoi ranges is that which is most accessible to the western world and will soonest give results from exploration."

Area Over 4,000 Square Miles.

The report, after describing the history of the region, the beginning of east Siberian mining, physical features and extent of the Stanovol field, as well as other mineral deposits, asserts the existence of untouched stores of gold, saying:

"It is idle to make the trite remark that the region described is one of unlimited possibilities. It is equally idle to expect any exploitation of the metal and mineral deposits to the benefit of Russia and the world for several years to come. The writer would point out, however, that the Okotsk-Ulya region at seaboard constitutes a distinctly new discovery of alluvial gold, which has every indication of containing great commercial reserve.

"Considering the areal extent already apparent, of more than 4,000 square miles, within 50 miles of the seacoast, over every part of which, so far as explored, gold is found, he regards it as a potential discovery of far greater importance than any of the isolated Alaska or Klondike discoveries of the last century."

Scattered portions of this field have already added $600,000,000 to the world's store of gold and the major part of it is entirely unknown outside of Russian literature and professional circles.

Must Build Roads.

"The development of aircraft, the increase of commercial shipping on the Pacific ocean, the better charting of remote seas and altogether the increased ability of engineers and navigators to deal with rigorous subarctic conditions, will in the course of a very few years make the zone of the Stanovol one of the accepted fields of economic exploitation, although the vastness of the distances will enforce the construction of roads from the ocean through the mountain passes to the interior.

"The Trans-Siberian railway has no more to do with the region described than has, for example, the Southern Pacific to do with Hudson's bay and the Great Slave lake. So vast and so far beyond the ken of ordinary human conception is this supercontinent of Asia, which, itself a cradle of races immeasurably old, is yet today being re-discovered industrially."

JUDGMENT OF PARTITION.

Sale Ordered of the Property of Late F. B. Mayham at South Gilboa.

An action partition involving the property of the late Frank B. Mayham situated near South Gilboa and including a valuable lake and about 280 acres of land was before Justice Kellogg yesterday. The proofs, which were in part of a technical nature, as the legal status of several leases given by Mr. Mayham in his lifetime had to be determined, were completed and the court directed judgment of partition and sale, findings to be submitted to be agreed upon by the respective attorneys.

Judge A. J. McNaught of Stamford appeared for the plaintiff, Arthur F. Mayham; A. L. O'Connor of Hobart for defendants Alice M. Cowan, Theodora M. Cameron and Elsie M. Vaughn, and Messrs. Alger & Coughlan of New York for Sheffield Farms company, Inc., also defendants.

Ten-Year-Old Girl in Binghamton Killed Near Her Home.

Binghamton, Jan. 26. — Clara File, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph File, of 400 Chenango street, was killed in front of her home shortly after 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when a touring car, driven by C. B. Hunt of Afton, ran into her.

Her mother, who was about to accompany the child across the street, fainted at the sight, and was hurried to the Binghamton City hospital, only to recover and return to the scene, where she nearly collapsed over the body of her child, in the barber shop of Clarence McDowall, at 409 Chenango street.

Dr. Charles S. Butler, former coroner, of 21 Main street, who was driving his automobile northward on Chenango street, saw the girl suddenly start to cross the street, from about in front of the McDowall barber shop on the west side of the street, just south of the intersection of State, toward her house on the east side of the street. A truck was coming southward on Chenango street, he said, and the little girl just grazed that vehicle only to find herself in front of the Hunt automobile. According to Dr. Butler, Mr. Hunt was driving carefully at a rate of speed of not more than 12 miles an hour. "I would think he was careful," said Dr. Butler.

The police took Mr. Hunt to the police headquarters, where they were met by Assistant District Attorney Frank L. Wooster, who questioned him. Accompanying Mr. Hunt in his car were Mrs. Hunt and some women friends from Afton.

Mr. Wooster announced at 3:30 o'clock that all the facts show that Mr. Hunt was driving carefully and that "it was simply an unavoidable accident." He added that Mr. Hunt would not be held in custody.

Two Vagrants Arrested.

At a late hour Friday evening Officer Farone of the D. & H. police took into custody two men who gave their names as Louis Braffon and Lopez Francisco, and their home as New York city, the charge being vagrancy. They were lodged in the city jail, and will be brought before Judge Van Woert in city court this morning at 9 o'clock.

...rn in New York, He's Never Seen Broadway Bright Lights

BY STEVE HANNAGAN
New Service Writer.

New York, Jan. 21. — "Resolved: That for the first time in my life I will trip up to Times Square and ...mp the bright lights that have made Broadway the most-talked-of street in the world."

This is the strange New Year resolution of John Reilly, 43, "the most popular man on the Bowery," who never has been beyond 23d street in uptown New York.

Although John, "key clerk" in a Bowery hotel, was born in New York and never has been out of the city, he has never really "seen" the big town according to the standards of the "typical Gothamites," whose sphere centers in the glaring activities of the exotic roaring Forties.

"You can see enough fun down here where folks are real," says John, whose abode is in the heart of the historic Bowery. His blond hair has long since grayed, but he looks more like 33 than 43 and his pink complexion is a defiant retort to the theory that colorful cheeks are a product of the open spaces.

Bowery Fame.

"It isn't such a big kick, being well known to the Bowery," reflects John, who is known to every man, woman and child in the district. "Somebody is always panhandling for a jit or a thin one for a shock."

By way of explanation, "panhandling" is begging, a "jit" is a nickel, a "thin one" a dime and a "shock" a drink of cheap Bowery booze.

"A couple of bowls and holes!" John ordered as we sat in a Bowery food emporium.

The waiter brought two bowls—not cups—of coffee and each of us three doughnuts. Two "takes" of this five-cent order are considered a "fill."

It was a rare collection of individuals in this cafe where a portion of hash means a real cleanup of the kitchen.

"Two links of Atlantic cable!" shouted the hardened counter man when a Bowery plutocrat ordered fried sausage.

"Stew for a bum!" was another order.

"Throw him out!" echoed from a dingy kitchen in the rear.

"Two boiled eggs — one must be good," ordered a customer. It was explained he had a temperamental stomach.

JOHN REILLY, SHOWING A GUEST TO HIS ROOM.

Restaurant Lingo.

A man ordered two poached eggs on toast.

"Adam and Eve on a raft," jargoned the waiter.

"No, change that to scrambled eggs," said the customer.

"Ship wreck 'em!" yelled the waiter.

John's hobby is the movies, but his real joy is taking a Sunday afternoon walk with his "sister's kids" as he describes two fatherless nieces, 10 and 14 years old.

For 26 years John has held the same position and his constant companion is a cur dog named "Bum," a five-year-old possession he has fostered since puphood.

"The Bowery is a lot tougher than it used to be," said Reilly, who doesn't drink or smoke. "Since the god old days when beer was a nickle and the best hooch a dime have passed, they rob and kill for fifteen cents. They didn't do that in the old days."

"I don't think I'll get a kick out of Broadway, but I've resolved to see it—well, because it's custom to make a New Year resolution, and I can't think of anything I'm doing I want to stop," were his parting words.

COLUMBUS AS TRAVEL WRITER

Wrote of What He Found Among the Indies.

SIDELIGHTS ON LONG VOYAGE

Ask your friends to name a few of the great travel writers of all times and you will get many names—Marco Polo, Richard Hakluyt, Henry M Stanley—probably none will mention Columbus.

If he did and you inquired "which Columbus?" he would conclude you were asking a trick question.

"The fame of Christopher Columbus as the discoverer of America has both overshadowed his own remarkably observant account of what he found among the Indies and the biographical narrative of his son, Ferdinand Columbus," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Both documents are accessible and known to geographers and historians. Indeed, the latter's authorship has aroused considerable controversy, yet they are not read so popularly as are many other travel classics."

Trees "Stretching Up to Stars."

An example of the descriptive style of Columbus is quoted from his remarks about Cuba, which he called Juana, and at first believed to be a part of the China coast. Columbus wrote:

"This island is surrounded by many very safe and wide harbors not excelled by any others that I have ever seen. Many great and salubrious rivers flow through it. There are also many very high mountains there.

"All these islands are very beautiful, and distinguished by various qualities; they are accessible and full of a great variety of trees stretching up to the stars, the leaves of which I believe are never shed, for I saw them as green and flourishing as they are usually in Spain in the month of May; some of them were blossoming, some were bearing fruit, some were in other conditions; each one was thriving in its own way. The nightingale and various other birds without number were singing in the month of November, when I was exploring them. There are besides, in the said Island of Juana, seven or eight kinds of palm trees, which far excel ours in height and beauty, just as all the other trees, herbs and fruits do."

Believed Visitors Celestial.

Of the natives of the islands Columbus wrote:

"These people practice no kind of idolatry; on the contrary they firmly believe that all strength and power, and in fact all good things are in heaven, and that I had come down from thence with these ships and sailors; and in this belief I was received there after they had put aside fear. Nor are they slow or unskilled, but of excellent and acute understanding; and the men who have navigated that sea give an account of everything in an admirable manner; but they never saw people clothed, nor this kind of ships."

One island, which Columbus called Mateunin, probably Martinique, he believed to be inhabited only by women.

"These women," he said, "perform no kind of work of their sex, for they use bows and darts; they protect themselves with sheets of copper. They tell of another island, whose inhabitants are without hair, and which abounds in gold above all others."

Explorer's Commercial Report.

The explorer's summary of the commercial advantages of the islands said: "I promise this, that if I am supported by our most invincible sovereigns with a little of their help, as much gold can be supplied as they will need, indeed as much of spices, of cotton, of chewing-gum (which is only found in Chios); also as much of aloes-wood, and as many slaves for the navy as their majesties will wish to demand."

Interesting sidelights on the first transatlantic voyage abound in the biography of Ferdinand Columbus, based on his illustrious father's log. This journal contained a surprising amount of data telling what winds blew, how far he sailed with each particular wind, what currents were found, and "everything that was seen by the way, whether birds, fishes or any other thing."

How Lobster Played Its Part.

Every school child knows that the birds gave the mariners their first inkling of their approach to land; the lobster has scarcely had his due for confirming the portent of the birds. Ferdinand Columbus writes:

"Next day (September 17) the seaweed was seen in much greater quantity, and a small live lobster was observed among the weeds; from this circumstance many affirmed that they were certainly near the land."

In addition to his duties as mariner and his task of keeping a voluminous journal Columbus frequently had to keep his men from turning back by shrewd and ingenious appeals. Following the excitement of his men over the irregularities of the compass, the narrator says that Columbus "alleged that it was occasioned by the polar star making a circuit round the pole."

BOY SCOUTS FIND LOST INDIAN CAMP AT YONKERS

Death of Woodchuck Reveals 200-Year-Old Secret

New York.—Arctomys Monax was a great woodchuck, lean and thin as the woodland law says one should be. Last July he mysteriously disappeared from Rocky Lonesome Forest, Yonkers, where he and his ancestors had been curators or keepers of the secret location of the last Indian village site of Armeperahin.

The Museum of Natural History troop of boy scouts, with a cabin near, interested in archaeology, never discovered the site. When any of them approached it was Mr. Monax's duty to scurry squealing from the knoll in the black dirt of which were the relics, arrowheads, worked stones, etc., nobly down through underbrush to a thicket and into his hole. He never failed to decoy invaders away from the secret.

For 200 years the Monax family had kept the secret. Even Bolton's history does not fix the location of Armeperahin, though it tells how Director Kieft of Fort Amsterdam sent Ensign Hendricks Van Dyck with soldiers in March, 1643, to wipe out the Wechquaeskeck at Dobbs Ferry. Deceived by an Indian guide he reached the vicinity of Armeperahin, lost his way in Rocky Lonesome, and returned to Manhattan without firing a shot. The Indians deserted Armeperahin, leaving the woodchuck in charge.

Arctomys, short legs, grizzly yellow-gray coat, and black gloves on four feet, was a faithful curator until he discovered that bread and other waste food purloined from the scout camp was good. Then like Adam in Eden he grew fat and slothful. He disappeared, to the sorrow of the scouts to whom he represented the wild animals once in the Spuyten woods. They hunted vainly, and broke camp.

Recently the Appalachian Mountain club's New York chapter, following Van Dyck's war trail in the rock fastnesses, solved the mystery by finding under rare brakes beside a rabbit path a pathetic little heap of bones, all that was left of Mr. Monax. Grown fat against wilderness law, stupidity overtook him. The door of his hole closed with golden leaves, no scurrying dirty to load them away, the Appalachian felt went up the knoll where a quick eye detected a stone-pecking implement, and the secret of 200 years was out. And now, maybe, the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, will excavate there, and all because Mr. Monax ate forbidden food.

Both Spatter Along.

People who breathe indoor air all the time are like automobile motors that get a poor mixture of gas. Both spatter along in a very unsatisfactory manner.

Seaweed found on the shores of the Orkney islands contains a certain chemical which, combined with coal dust, makes a successful fuel.

To Weaken Rope.

The tensile strength of a wet rope is only one-third of the same rope when dry, and a rope saturated with grease or soap is weaker still.

Kissing Boston Pastor Exonerated by Board

Boston.—The Rev. George L. Paine, who received a beating early in July at the hands of Lieut. Wesley McLaren Hague, U. S. N., on account of a kiss which the minister, who had married the pair, gave the lieutenant's wife, will continue as executive secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches.

The board of directors of the federation, voting after a five-hour session, refused, by a vote of 27 to 4, to accept his proffered resignation.

The board statement said the incident was referred to as "essentially an offense against high manners and the highest type of behavior" only, in view of the fact that Lieutenant Hague, in a signed statement had said that "neither he nor his wife believed at any time that there was any evil intent in Mr. Paine's action."

Roads Employ 500,000 More Men Than Year Ago

Washington.—Railroads were employing during July 1,954,687 workers, almost 500,000 more than they employed during the same month a year ago. They paid out during the same month in wages and salaries $261,805,549, against a payment during July, 1922, of $193,571,244.

These figures were reported recently by the Interstate Commerce commission. They indicated a slight increase in earning rates for all classes of railroad employees during the year.

Trainmen in July last averaged $180 per month, while a year ago their earnings were $180; maintenance of way employees averaged $3 a month more than last year. Professional and clerical workers averaged $178 per month, while a year ago they got $172.

Missing Dog Discovered in the Family Laundry

New York.—"We do not wash dogs."

This is the sign that A. J. Burton, laundryman, threatens to hang out in front of his establishment.

When Mrs. Norman Roberts, wife of Lieutenant Roberts of the naval medical staff, couldn't find her valuable pet dog she was heartbroken. Twelve gobs were appointed to run down all clews that might lead to the canine's recovery.

The search ended when Mr. Burton found the pet in the Roberts' family bag of laundry, brought in by a wagon man, and notified the owner.

Man Can Add Years to Life by Careful Living

Lima, O.—By careful living the normal man can add at least ten years to his life, Dr. Charles Mayo, famous surgeon of Rochester, Minn., declared in an address here recently to physicians, surgeons and dentists from all parts of northwestern Ohio who came here to attend a clinic as guests of the Allen County Academy of Medicine. The way to attain the extra years, Doctor Mayo said, is to be examined at least once a year by a competent physician and follow his advice.

He declared that a physical examination of most men would disclose within a year or two just when they will die and what will cause their death, provided they do not change their habits or meet with accident.

Doctor Mayo was the chief clinician at a goiter clinic and the guest of honor and principal speaker at a dinner given by the medical society.

New York, Jan. 25. — Speculators for the advance maintained control of today's stock market despite the attempt of bear operators to unsettle the list by heavy offerings of a number of the motor and chemical shares and such specialities as Famous Players and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe. Prices were churned about considerably in the early dealings but a broad forward movement set in towards the close under the leadership of U. S. Steel common, which touched 104⅛. The highest price since last spring, and nearly three points above yesterday's close.

High-priced specialties again developed marked buoyancy. General Electric touched 221⅝, the highest price in more than 20 years closing slightly below that figure for a net gain of eight points. Corn products established a record high for all time at 183, up four and one-fourth, as against this year's low of 162⅝. American Can and Foundry advanced almost eight points to 174⅝. United Fruit jumped more than six points to 195. American Can established a record high at 111⅝, closing at a net gain of nearly two points.

Operators on the long side of the market found little difficulty in obtaining funds to finance their operations. Call money again ruled at four per cent but "outside" loans were reported to have made as low as three and one-half. Commission houses reported an increase in public participation, but thus far the buying from this source has been of a rather cautious character.

Buying of the steel shares was influenced by reports of increased operations of the principal companies and the favorable interpretation made by market observers of the preliminary annual report of the Bethlehem Steel [illegible] Crucible, [illegible] and Gulf States each closed about one and one-fourth points higher.

Oils were helped by announcement of a further increase in Pennsylvania crude prices. The Pan-American issues, which have been under considerable pressure lately as a result of the Mexican revolution and the disclosures before the senate committee investigation naval oil leases, snapped back about two points each, while Sinclair moved up nearly a point.

Strength of the sugar shares was based on the improved trade outlook. Cuba Cane preferred developing considerable activity on the belief that early action will be taken to wipe out part of the 19 per cent accumulation of back dividends.

Railroad shares lagged behind the general list until just before the close when heavy buying set in for a scattered assortment of issues. Southern Railway climbed more than two points to 44, a record high, Delaware and Hudson, International and Great Northern, and Canadian Pacific moved up about two points each and Big Four advanced four points on a small turnover.

Continued easy rates for money diverting investment funds into the bond market, today sent prices of a number of convertible and short-term railroad, public utilities and industrial issues into new high ground. Buying was well distributed but after the early dealing was not particularly brisk. Prices in general, however, continued to point definitely upward.

Low-priced short-term railroad bonds attracted interest. International and Great Northern adjustment is experiencing a sharp rally on speculation as to the next interest payment. Other speculative issues, such as Iron Mountain refunding 4s and Rock Island refunding 4s, also were in demand, and renewed buying sent all the St. Paul issues higher.

American Food Package Gives Kin of Sufferers in Germany Opportunity To End Distress

TO many of those persons of German extraction who now make their homes in America, Germany is still visualized as a land of plenty, with bountiful food supplies and healthy inhabitants. They are unable to convince themselves of the changes wrought by years of stress.

Germany has undergone a metamorphosis terrible to contemplate. Undernourished men and women totter to their daily toil—when there is work to be had—and the children are as those of another and less sturdy race. Bloom has gone from young cheeks and the rollicking laughter of childhood has given away to piteous appeals for food.

America has interested herself in the suffering population of Germany. A committee headed by Major General Henry T. Allen is co-operating with the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers) to see that the mouths of Germany's children receive nourishment. And now, the urge of humanity has moved the American people to take further steps to alleviate her distress. General Allen's committee has provided an agency whereby any resident of America may send food to distressed relatives or friends in Germany. It is a food package department. This bureau, upon receipt of $10, will send to any individual in Germany a package consisting of 119 pounds of nourishing food—more than could be purchased for an equal sum in Germany and some of it unobtainable at any price over there.

This package consists of 49 pounds of flour, 25 pounds of rice, 10 pounds of sugar, eight pounds of cooking fats, three pounds of cocoa and 24 tins of evaporated milk.

Imagine what it will mean to a starving person in Germany to receive this assistance!

The packages will be sent upon application, in person or by mail, to the American Committee for Relief of German Children, Room 938, 43 Broadway, New York City.

This is an opportunity not only for Americans of German extraction to succor distress but for everyone to respond to a plea from a stricken people.

LEAGUE MEETS CUT

Director Kershaw of Dairymen's Association Says It Will Maintain Market

H. J. Kershaw of Sherburne, Director of Dairymen's League for This District, Addresses Quarterly Meeting Held in Cooperstown Yesterday — Says Reserve of Two Millions Will Be Used to Control City of New York — Loan Offered in Case of Necessity.

Cooperstown, Jan. 25. — That the Dairymen's league is determined to maintain control of its fluid milk market and that it will go the limit in this respect was the assertion of H. J. Kershaw of Sherburne, director of district thirteen, in his address before the quarterly meeting of sub-division 7, Otsego county, held in the village hall in Cooperstown Friday afternoon. And when he stated that the league was through paying the non-poolers a premium for staying out of the organization, the crowd of dairy farmers from all parts of the county, filling the hall, greeted his words with enthusiastic applause.

Mr. Kershaw went further and stated that the league has a reserve of $2,000,000 with which to carry out its purpose, and that one of the large New York city banks has offered another $2,500,000 to the organization.

"It is the non-pooler who is worried today," said Mr. Kershaw, "as he does not know whether he will have a market for his milk tomorrow or not. Some of the dealers who refused to sell their plants to the league when it was compelled to enter competitive territory already have changed their minds, and some of them have sold to the league.

"I do not know of a single instance where the dealer has taken the trouble to notify the farmers in advance of what was to take place. The first intimation that the patrons had of the fact that they were without a market for their milk came from the league itself.

"Many so-called reasons why the non-pooler is not with us have been given," continued the speaker, "but the real reason lies in the fact that he has been receiving more for his milk. If we could have paid from May 1, 1921, to the present just a nickle more than anyone else there would have been no such thing as a non-pooler on the face of the earth. But I say that he has sold his birthright for a mess of pottage and has jeopardized the interests of the dairymen of this district for years to come."

Discussing the responsibility for the drop in the price of milk, the speaker said that the board of directors of the association met on October 24 and agreed to sell three per cent fluid milk, class one, at $3.45 per 100 pounds, which it was felt justified the cost of production.

The Sheffield Farms company's bulletin for November, 1923, said: "Just as the bulletin goes to press, announcement is made that the representatives of the producers and officials of the company met in New York city on October 26 and agreed on the price of November milk. The price was $3.05 per 100 pounds with ... differentials."

This price was 40 cents below the League's New York price. The board of directors of this association met on November 7 and agreed to meet this cut of nearly one cent a quart by dropping the price on November 12 to $2.80. On November 13 the Sheffield Farms company met again and cut the price to $2.55. Again the league met the cut and did so again in January. It is its intention to continue to meet competition and retain control of its only fluid milk market.

Mr. Kershaw also said that in the recent past he had attended 66 meetings about the territory and that the morale of the organization was above what it was a year ago. At that time there was much anxiety on the part of the producers and the heads of the organization as they faced the contract period. There is no fear or uncertainty in the hearts of the members of the association today. The league guarantees assure outlet for the product and a sure return in the form of a check every month. It guarantees protection for the producer by furnishing a steady market every day in the week.

In his opening remarks Mr. Kershaw devoted considerable attention to the theory of marketing, a branch of farming which he said was of greater importance than production. He said that the great object in marketing was to supply just the amount of any commodity that the market wanted. If too little were supplied then the profit became too great and the consumer suffered. If too much were supplied the price became so depressed that the producer suffers accordingly.

"The Dairyman's League," continued the speaker, "is endeavoring to market its product in an orderly and business-like way. It is trying to sell on the fluid market just the amount of milk that can be used, and to manufacture the balance into by-products so that the surplus will not compete with the fluid supply.

"The reason why the dairyman is not getting cost plus a fair profit for his milk lies in over production and the competition of non-organized producers. The surplus must be manufactured and placed in the markets of the world, which are controlled neither by the league nor by anyone.

"The manufactured products are sold on a quality basis and an advertising campaign has been carried out on a large scale and with good results. As the dairy industry will never have a living price for its product while it remains divided, I see no future for the farmer except peasantry, unless he is organized."

J. D. Beardsley, president of the Otsego county association, presided and urged a united effort on the part of all members to increase the enrollment in their locals, and that this effort be made at once.

Harlo P. Beals, agent of the Otsego County Farm bureau, spoke briefly in behalf of that organization, and L. H. Brace of the G. L. F. addressed the meeting and urged all farmers to make use of their service.

Mr. Beardsley reported that the fund of one mill on every 100 pounds of milk, amounting to $320.11 had been received. Upon the recommendation of a committee appointed at the opening of the meeting it was voted that this sum be turned over to the secretary-treasurer. It was also voted that delegates to the county meeting be paid $5 for each meeting attended and that the secretary receive $15 for his services at each meeting. A system of financing similar to that used by the Farm bureau was adopted.

The following duly elected delegates answered to the roll call: H. F. Gates, Unadilla Forks; H. J. Ferguson, Oneonta; E. D. Derthick, Richfield Springs; A. M. McDonald, Oneonta; Ray F. Fitch, Burlington Flats; L. G. Bentley, Worcester; John Nelson, Decatur, Floyd Hooker, Cherry Valley; George H. Ward Garrattsville; E. Z. Carleton, Morris; Charles S. Hurlbutt, Gilbertsville; A. B. PLAINS SCHOOL EXPANDING

Unfinished Part of New Building to Be Made Ready For Use Before Another School Year—Enrollment Over 150.

The school building at the Plains, caring for the children of district number 6, and erected less than three years ago, is already being found inadequate, with the facilities provided in the beginning, to care for the demands placed upon it as a result of the rapid growth of the school. The enrollment of the school a little over two years ago was 76, but had increased to over 150 at the beginning of the present year's work. With this constant growth more and more room has been needed, and at the present time the large second floor auditorium is being used as a class room, until other facilities can be provided.

Fortunately there is room available to take care of present needs, one-half of the second floor having been left unfinished heretofore, with space sufficient for two rooms, each adequate to accommodate 35 or 40 pupils, and with ample cloak room facilities. This will leave the present auditorium free for the uses for which it was originally designed, and will provide an additional room as soon as it becomes necessary to divide the grades. Bids for this work are already being received, the actual work will be started within the next few weeks, and it is expected that everything will be in working order before the beginning of another school year.

At present no addition to the teaching staff of the school will be necessary. The neighborhood in which the school is located is developing very rapidly, however, and provided the past rate of growth is maintained it is only a question of time not only until more teachers are needed but until the present building will be completely outgrown.

Jordan to Return for Delaware Work.

E. K. Jordan, the staff officer of the National organization of Boy Scouts, who has been assisting for some time with the organizatin of the Otsego-Schoharie Scout council, with Oneonta as his headquarters, left for Albany Friday evening for a meeting of his regional staff, to be held over the week-end. Mr. Jordan returns to this vicinity next week, when the campaign in Delaware county for an organization similar to the one recently effected here will be brought to a culmination.

YEARS OF ACHIEVEMENT

Period Since Reorganization of Chamber of Commerce Discussed with Pride at Dinner Yesterday.

Pointing with pride to the many important achievements of Oneonta Chamber of Commerce during the past three years, and to the essential part it plays in community betterment and development of co-operative spirit and civic interest, speakers at a dinner meeting of the Membership committee of the Chamber held last evening at the Elks' club expressed confidence that citizens of Oneonta will give full credit for the organization's past success and line up in support of the membership campaign next week.

First Vice President Frank G. Sherman of the Chamber presided at the meeting and called upon Owen C. Becker for a few remarks. Mr. Becker emphasized the growth in co-operative spirit and the sense of civic responsibility directly traceable since the Chamber's reorganization three years ago, pointing out that citizens urging things be done now say "we" rather than use the duty-dodging pronoun "they." Dr. George J. Dann urged full and prideful recognition of all the Chamber has accomplished since 1921. Roscoe C. Briggs stressed careful reading of the bulletin, "Oneonta Progress," which summarizes past accomplishments, and related how carefully finances of the Chamber are expended to meet the many demands for funds to carry on its community work.

Instructions to the membership committee to meet at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Chamber offices to receive prospect cards and at noon at the Elks' club on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for reports, were given by Henry T. Hoag, campaign director.
